Proclamation

The week of April 19-24, inclusive, has been designated as Spring Clean-up Week.

There are many reasons why the Spring Clean up Campaign this year should receive the enthusiastic support of every man, woman and child. First, because Fire Prevention Cleanup Campaign this year is of particular importance as it can be combined with general welfare work, and he of benefit to unemployed, Second, because every dollar in propert destroyed by fire is a drain upon our economic condition. And third, every citien should have a wholesome pride in his home city, its streets, playgrounds, its parks and buildings.

Now. Therefore, I, Holly Toler, mayor of the City of Hamlin, do hereby designate the week of April 19 24, inclusive, as Spring Cleanup Week, and most respectfully call upon all departments of the City, Chamber of Commerce, Patriotic and Civic Clubs, and our people in general to take active part in this Cleanup Cam-

LABOR: Lewis Fight

John L. Lewis and the Taft-Hartley law were locked in a mortal

His United Mine Workers were still out of the pits in a "voluntary" objection to the companies' alleged refusal to provide them with a $100-a-month pension plan. Most of the 400,000 miners were out fishing. Lewis himself was out gunning for the Taft-Hartley law, enactment of which was largely the result of his activities in the first place.

After the miners had gone out, President Truman, acting under the Taft-Hartley law, had appointed a fact-finding board to investigate the difficulties. But when the board asked John L. Lewis to testify, he

Then the board issued a subpoena requesting that he appear. Again Lewis refused, stating that the board had no right to demand his presence

He said he based his disinclination to testify on the facts that:

Neither he nor the UMW had 1 done anything covered by the Taft-Hartley law, thereby nullifying the President's invocation of the

Finally, minutes before the deadline, the burly, bushy-eyebrowed chief appeared.

It was obvious, of course, that the UMW chief was out to break the Taft-Hartley enactment. Apparently he was determined to drag the pension dispute all the way through the courts-preferably as high as the supreme court to get a final verdict.

And any way it turned out, the process would react for the miners' immediate benefit. While the courts would be mulling over the matter the date for the annual renewal of the mine workers' contract in June would be approaching. The longer the present d'spute remained unsettled, the worse the nation's coal situation would grow, thus putting Lewis in a good bargaining position to extract a favorable contract for next year.

MOBILIZE:

Controls?

Bernard M. Baruch approves of selective service and universal military training for the present quasicrisis, but he does not think that is enough to meet all the implications the world situation holds.

The financier and presidential adviser called also for an "economic mobilization plan" and said that America's failure to muster all its resources now for peace would leave "no alternative but to mobilize for war" in the future.

Baruch told the senate armed serv-Ices committee that he was afraid that if the nation suddenly and without preparation were called upon to mobilize and prepare for a big war, such forces of domestic inflation would be set in motion as could blow the country wide open and leave it defenseless.

He suggested the appointment of someone to "watch the impact upon our economy of the partial mobilization we are entering upon and to maintain a constant inventory, balancing all our growing commitments against our resources."

It had not been a hidden threat, but Baruch's statement had focused attention on the possible danger that a sudden spate of military spending could bring about ruinous inflation.

As a result, talk of reviving the defunct OPA was being heard in Washington. Baruch's warning He conceived a "People for Eisentouched off informal discussions in congress about the possibility of reviving wage-price controls, rationing and other curbs on the domestic economy.

This, of course, had been an integral part of President Truman's am a citizen of voting age." famous 10-point program against inflation which he proposed last year, but most congressmen virtually had gagged at the thought of reimposing price and wage controls, and the President was accused of trying to set up something like a "police state.

Now, however, congressmen were not so sure. They were beginning by Maj. Gen. Floyd L. Parks, army to wonder if the military spending necessary to contain Russia might not have to be buttressed by con- ago" should "apply to all parties and telligence service for espionage in trols at home.

TO WALLACE: Veiled Hint

Henry Wallace, whose third party movement was coming more and more to follow the standard Communist party line, had reached the status of a complete pariah as far as President Truman was concerned.

In his St. Patrick's day address in New York the President had rejected angrily any notion of accepting Wallace's support in his campaign, even if it cost him the elec-

Then, during the course of remarks made at a dinner meeting of Greek-Americans in Washington, Mr. Truman turned on still more

He issued an acidulous, thinly veiled suggestion that Wallace take his third party movement to Russia where Mr. Truman obviously thinks It belongs.

"I was going to tell you that the Greeks had a Henry Wallace," the President said to his listeners. "I was going to tell you that the Greeks had a statesman, an orator, a demagogue. . . . They had the greatest demagogue of all times, Alcibiades."

(Alcibiades was a famous Athenian who, after committing certain indiscretions, was forced to flee Athens. He went to Sparta and there betrayed secrets of his countrymen which were instrumental in

Mr. Truman continued: "If imisaid also, "I'd be in favor of using tators of that ancient Greek conqueror want to see . . . liberties subverted, I suggest that they go not to the Rocky mountains-that's fine country out there. Ruminating on Ruminants, Or Cogitating About Cows

By BAUKHAGE News Analyst and Commentator

WASHINGTON,-The subject of cows recently has been called to my attention.

In the early pre-crossword days, a cow was supposed to be an animal of the bovine species. Now it is just a three-letter word meaning ruminant. There is another three-letter word which also sometimes means a ruminant of which I will speak later.

Before I knew that a cow was either a member of the bovine species or a ruminant, I thought it was phemistically addressed as "Bossie," and which (I was told) would not hurt me. I took the former statement as correct, but had grave doubts about the latter. Later I was taught that c-o-w spelled, not bossie. but cow, and still later I was chased by one. This caused additional doubt concerning free information furnished by one's

Then came the crossword puzzles. I saw that "three, horizontal" was a three-letter word meaning ruminant. Having heard of the word "ruminate" by that time, and thinking that, thinking or, if you will, ruminating, was a fairly-common practice among the genus homo, I wrote down "man." Later when I met a number of congressmen I was con-

Now I know that neither definition is entirely wrong. A cow ruminates when it chews its cud (having chewed it before), and a man ruminates when he chews an idea upon which he has chewed

In some ways however, cows and men differ. In fact, cows even differ in some respects from women, although all three creatures-man, woman and cow-are mammals, the highest form of vertebrate, those which (the authorities inform me) nurse their young with milk. Just how man gets into this category is man than this quizzical simian as a little beyond me, but that is what he bestows a suspicious glare on the scientist says, and I am willing photographer Arthur Sasse and to strain my credulity a little. > Now what has a cow got that you and I haven't? Answer: Cattie are closely related to the buffalo, the bison and the yak. I defy any genealogist to produce a bison, a buffalo and a yak in one human family tree. On the other hand, in the branches of a cow's family tree, there are no monkeys.

In some ways the cow has superior abilities. For instance, I have seen a cow roll over without spilling a drop of milk, which is more than any man, carrying a similar amount of lacteal fluid, could do.

Philologically, the cow seems to have somewhat of an edge on man, at least for those who believe in the :apitalistic system. The Latin word 'or cattle (as of course you know f you just looked it up as I did) is 'pecus." And the word pecuniary s derived from that, and the words :attle, chattel and capital are to each other what cow itself is to buf-!alo, bison and yak.

All present-day breeds of cattle, 1 am authoritatively informed, are Leader of the group functioning in descended from the two types, large times in Europe. However, in recent time_ (and now we are getting down to what started me ruminat-'He confessed he was a member ing), something new has been added. We now have developed what

> The "hot" are the Brahmas which have been insinuated into our own American strains to inure them to our southern latitudes and for other purposes. As you know, Brahma cattle are known by their humps. A braw Brahma has a large hump just abaft the shoulders, a d the others of lesser rank have smaller humps getting down to something not much larger than a fever blister.

The "cold" cow is quite a different thing. As might be expected, it comes from Russia where they invented the cold war, the cold shoulder and the common or Siberian cold, which is used to correct false ideologies, longevity and monopolistic capitalism.

When applied to cows instead of capitalists, the cold has the opposite effect on longevity. According to a recent article in Food Industries, a McGraw-Hill publication, the Russians have produced, by means of a chilling process applied from early calf-hood, cows which live with a high output to 15 years, yield up to 100,000 liters of milk and give birth to 15 calves.

The process is simple. One selects a calf from selected parents. It is put in an unheated barn where the temperature is kept at five degrees fahrenheit. The barns, I take Snyder would have drawn 10 per it, are much like the ordinary Soviet citizen's dwelling except that there is plenty of bedding and the calves

The results of the chilling process on calves appear remarkable, but not for a moment would I doubt the veracity of the writer-despite my early experience with erroneous information concerning cows.

The other type of ruminant upon which these ruminations are based is illustrated in these columns.

The Old Order How It Passeth

After the grey winter days New Hampshire avenue almost sparkles these spring mornings.

The elm buds are spreading and the shadows of trunk and limb make sharp patterns on the wide expanse of the huge Belmont house. This house now is occupied by the Eastern Star-no family ever could have done more than rattle about in that palatial mansion. I suppose there will be few such palaces built in Washington any more-one after another, they are being torn down. The Leiter house on Dupont Circle is gone and a family hotel is rising in its place. Many other mansions, too big for embassies even, served as boarding houses for war workers and now they are empty and for

One huge house which I pass occasionally is opened when the third generation, which still retains some of the original fortune, comes to Washington for a wedding or a party. After that the house is sealed back to dreaming of the past.

A part of this section of Washington-Dupont Circle - is being sealed off for a year while the roadbuilders burrow under the grassy park to make an underpass for trolley cars and automobiles. This will be the final plow of disfiguration to Connecticut avenue, which has yielded gradually over the years since I first knew it, to the vulgarian invasion.

A block below Dupont Circle that once was gay with the chatter of nursemaids and children of the foreign diplomats stood the British embassy. On the site today is a filling station.

Americans have eaten bananas since the 19th century but still many misconceptions concerning them exist, says Middle America Information. Not, we hope, that they should be kept in the refrigerator.

Two-thirds of all divorces are granted to women. Is that because Louis, likes everybody and everyof male chivalry-or the lack of it?

WHEN YOU HEAR someone crying or complaining about his bad luck or the tough breaks that have followed him, you don't have to pay the slightest attention to the sombre squawk. All you have to do is think about Al Snyder.

His dream, that of every jockey, was to ride a Kentucky Derby winner. Beyond that, to be the winning rider of the Triple Crown.

Snyder, after 10 tough riding years, was set to make his triple move in the Derby, the Preakness and the Belmont on a three-year-old known as Citation, rated today as the surest Triple Crown winner in racing history.

Unfortunately, Snyder went fishing in a small boat with two friends. They were in the famous Florida Keys. A gale came along without warning, and someone else will ride Citation in the three rich races. A whirl of wind at twilight-and the small boat had vanished

As the late Mr. Henley so well wrote: "Into the night go one and cent in each of these $100,000 tests. As far as one can peer into the fogs and mists of the future, here was $30,000—plus other big races to come as well as the fame of riding a standout champion.

Citation is still here and ready. So are Ben and Jimmy Jones. But just what happened to Sny'ler is anybody's guess.

Sport is always packed full of soul-searing breaks-of sudden turns that mean the difference between victory and defeat. But this is a different case. This sudden squall meant the difference between life with fame and gold and the sudden blotting out of a career that was just beginning to

On the verge of moving into the greatest fame a jockey could know, Snyder suddenly came to the end of the road in the roaring, boiling water of the Keys. Fate never bothers where the aces or the deuces

Golf Winners in 1948

Who will win the Masters? Who will win the Open? Who will win the PG.A.? Apparently it doesn't Herman Keiser won the Masters in 1946 and has won little since. Lew Worsham won the Open at St. Louis last year and hasn't won a zen of the U.S.S.R. doesn't need the tournament since. Jim Ferrier from Australia won the P.G.A. but has set no blazing woodlands on fire since.

> Why is it that we have no golfers who can win more than one tournament on a 3,500-mile junket? Horton Smith won six around 1928. Jimmy Demaret won six or seven a few years back. MacDenald Smith won eight big ones in a year. Bobby Jones mopped up in 1930. Jones and Hagen won 24 national and international championships between them.

Now you can't find a golfer who can win as many as two. Ben Hogan never has won an Open. Jimmy Demaret never has won an Open or a P.G.A. Sammy Snead never has won a U. S. Open, although the brilliant but erratic Snead has won the P.G.A. and the British Open.

Hogan, Nelson, Snead and Demaret are too good to stand on their records in the U. S. Open, the British Open and the P.G.A., the three top titles of golf.

Where is another Bobby Jones? Another Walter Hagen, another Gene Sarazen? I might add another Tommy Armour and another Jim Barnes, who won these three major events.

The modern charge is made that Jones, Hagen and Sarazen played in only few tournaments-that all three would have been nervous wrecks if they had followed the rough trail that Hogan, Demaret. Snead and the others have taken, This can be true.

I am not going to deny it for I can't prove these charges are wrong. All I know is there are too many up again, the burglar alarms are tournaments today for the good of attached and the old residence goes the player. Especially the better player. Big money golf is much rougher on the nerves than world series baseball or any form of football. The mental side is far more important in golf than it is in baseball, football or boxing.

Yogi Berra, the "Arm"

A year ago at the St. Petersburg dog track, I bought Yogi Berra a $2 ticket on a greyhound that paid $112. Lately I have given Berra several tips that finished last or close to last. Much to my astonishment, Berra still remembered the first and only good deed. "Who cares?" he would say as my tip finished far out of the money.

This made me realize that Berra was an exceptional human being. He remembers only the good that is buried with mankind, not the evil that lives after them.

Berra, the Yankee catcher, has a friendly heart and a deadly batting eye. The pride of Dago Hill, St. body likes him.

Easily Built Bird House And Feeding Station

TF you want to turn your spare time into a useful and productive hobby, make up this birdhouse and feeding station. You'll have fun building these attractive houses and will be agreeably surprised to see what a professional job you can do using only hand tools.

Since each component part of the house is reproduced full size on the printed paper pattern, all the mystery usually associated with woodworking is dispelled. You merely cut each piece of wood according to the shape and size of the pattern, then fasten each part together in exact position indieach part together in exact position indicated. Decorating the finished house is further simplified by merely tracing the full size decorating guides directly on the house. The outlines are then painted the colors pattern specifies.

If your youngster is interested in develop-ing a part-time business, get him to make up one or two of these houses or feeding stations. Almost every homeowner is inter-ested in attracting birds and they will be delighted to buy these two houses.

The Pattern specifies exact size and amount of materials needed. Much of the wood can be salvaged from grocery boxes, crates, etc. Send 20c each for Bird House Pattern No. 10 and Feeding Station Pattern. No. 9 to Easi-Bild Pattern Company, Department W. Pleasantville, N. Y.

MERRY MERRY MERMAID

By MARY LOUISE CHEATHAM

bathers far around the shoreline. Merry finished her splashing in the chilly waters and climbed on a rock by the lakeside, the only rock in view anywhere on the sandy beach. It made a nice spot to sit and dry as the morning sun grew warmer. Spreading her beach robe over the rock to protect her new green bathing suit she rubbed her arms and legs briskly with a towel, then cast it aside and rummaged in the canvas beach bag for her brush and comb, and a hand mirror. She had just finished shaking the water from her long, blonde hair and was brushing it to a golden sheen when a masculine voice beside her told her she was no longer alone. "Ah, a mermaid!" said the voice, and there stood a bronzed young man in bathing trunks. He was tall and dark and broad-shouldered, and just the sort of young man a girl dreamed of meeting on her vacation, only he had appeared much too soon. She blushed and groped for an answer. She shivered and sneezed.

"Well," commented the young man. "I don't know mermaid language but kerchoo, yourself."

Without waiting to be asked, he had seated himself on the sand beside the rock and not knowing what else to do Merry went on awkwardly brushing her hair.

"What's your name?" he asked. "Mine's Terry Thornton. Staying with some cousins at that cottage down the line."

"Merry," she admitted unhappily. "Not Mary; Merry, like in Merry Christmas. Only my last name's Day. My mother had original ideas."

"Hmm." Terry mused. "Well, on you it turned out all right, though she took a chance. Supposing you were one of those grave, sober people who go around frowning all the time? But with those dimples and that smile it suits you."

Merry blushed again. It was disconcerting to have a strange young man studying her face so closely, but it was funny, too. She laughed.

"Merry," he repeated. "I like that. Merry and Terry. Makes a good combination. Hey! Where you going? Don't jump back in the water, mermaid. I'll only swim right after "Breakfast," said Merry, gathering up her belongings. "We haven't eaten yet. They're expecting me at the cottage."

"Well," said Terry reluctantly. "'Bye, then, for now. See you again." He walked over to the deep end of the pier, waved, dived cleanly and, as Merry left the beach, she saw him swimming with long, sure porpoise. strokes out to the raft. If only, she thought, he hadn't come along quite so soon! Now she would have to go to the beach even earlier.

"Terry Thornton?" said Mrs. White, with whom Merry was boarding during her vacation. "Why, yes. He comes up here summers to visit relatives in one of those cottages down the row. One of the best swimmers around here. Regular fish."

Merry's heart sank but she ate heartily of the blueberry muffins and decided nothing was going to spoil this vacation of hers. She had planned too long and worked too hard for it, and now she was going to enjoy every minute.

It was not much fun, going in the water so terribly early, but she splashed determinedly the next morning, then spread her beach robe on the sand and lay there on her stomach, soaking up what sunshine there was. Head cradled on elbow, she gazed dreamily at the lake. It was always changing color, like the stone in a ring she used to have-

Twas still early and the beach was green, blue, silver or gray, according other, she managed to avoid Terry deserted except for a few lone ing to the light. The office, with its and keep on with her attempts to irritations, seemed far away.

"Hello, there!" It was Terry. She sensed his presence before he spoke. "Care for a swim?" She shook her head. "I've already been in," she said. "Well," he persisted, "You can go in again." "No." said Merry. "I like it here on the beach." "Okay," Terry shrugged. "Suit yourself, I'm going to take a swim, then I've got to go to the village. Be gone all day. You ought to come along."

"No," said Merry. "Thanks any-

She was sorry to see him go, yet happy, too. He would be gone all day! As soon as he was completely out of sight she waded back into the water. Olga, Mrs. White's cook, came wading out but Merry didn't mind. Olga was plump and comfortable and she was eating an apple.

She went on practicing strokes and kicks, swallowing water and floundering in despair-and then, one day, one day of days, it happened! She swam! Only a few feet at first, then farther and farther and farther with practice. Bobby, her 10-year-old teacher, jumped up and down and shricked with joy, and they had a waterfight to celebrate. After that, nothing could stop her. It was just an easy sidestroke but it was swim-

"Tell you what," said Bobby. "I'll take the rowboat and row alongside in case you need me, and I

She had just finished shaking the water from her long, blonde hair and was brushing it to a golden sheen when a masculine voice beside her told her she was no longer alone.

"Can you swim, Olga?" called | Merry.

"No," answered Olga, "but I can float." She lay back, easily, on the surface of the water and continued eating her apple, gazing unconcernedly up at the sky.

"That's wonderful!" said Merry. She tried it but sank immediately, and sat up, gasping and blowing water out of her nose. A peal of laughter rang out and she looked into the face of a 10-year-old boy who was swimming about like a

"Here's the way," he said, and floated like Olga. "Gee!" he said. "Don't you know how to swim?"

"No," Merry admitted, sadly. "I've never been around water, much. I've always lived in the city, and I just never did learn."

"It's easy," said the boy. "Watch

So the lessons began. Hopeful and hopeless by turn, Merry kicked and splashed. Her freckle-faced tutor was a hard taskmaster and a merciless critic. They kept at it most of the day but Merry still couldn't stay on top of the water. "Looks like I'll never learn!" she thought, but early the next morning she was at it again. She managed to be lying on the beach when Terry dropped by. She turned down his invitation to go on an all-day boating trip with some friends. "Another day," she thought hopefully, Her young instructor turned up again that afternoon, as enthusiastic

LET'S TALK ABOUT You - BY CHARLES B. ROTH -

A Good Conversationalist

That the man I have just spent a week with has mastered one of the most important of all human arts, there is no doubt. Wherever we went he charmed those we met, charmed them by his personality, his graciousness, his poise, but principally by his conversation.

For he seemed to know exactly what to say to everyone to whom we talked. I mentioned it to him. "Oh, it's simple," he replied, "all I do is talk to them in terms of interests-their interests-their SPE-CIAL INTERESTS."

Every human being, as you know, has certain subjects in which he is especially interested-his business, his hobby, his family, some outside accomplishment, politics, something that especially interests.

Anything that appeals to a person's special interests, identifies you with him, will get and hold his attention-and if you get and hold anyone's attention he will find you an engaging personality. If you want your personality to appeal to others, all you have to do is follow the few simple rules which my friend explained to me.

"The first thing you have to do is to find out what your person's interests are," he began. "And that is not hard. Listen to anyone talk. We all talk most about what interests us most. You can also ask others about the interests of the person you are going to meet. It isn't hard to get information."

"Then," he continued, "acquire knowledge on the subject." None of us likes to talk to an ignoramus, sistibly interesting. See how easy Walter W. Head.

The Return From Exile Lesson for April 18, 1948

OWPER'S lines come to mind as we study the dramatic return of the Jews from their exile in Babylon to Jerusalem in the first year of the reign of Cyrus, king of Persia, 536 B. C.:

"God moves in a mysterious way His wonders to perform; He plants his footsteps in the sea

And rides upon the storm." And yet it is not altogether strange, for if you will turn to Jeremiah 29:4-14, you will find a prophecy given 50 years before the event that this very thing would occur. There were two Babylon, prior to the incident in our lesson-the return led' by Daniel, 606 B. C., and the one led by Ezekiel, 597 B. C.

PROCLAMATION OF CYRUS

THE proclamation of Cyrus, Ezra 1:1-5, records the happy word to the Jews that they would not only return, but that the temple would be rebuilt. Cyrus called upon all the people who would to make offerings by which the temple might be restored. Cyrus was acting under divine impulse in this gracious and generous proclama-"The Lord God of heaven hath given me all the kingdoms of the earth; and he hath charged me to build him an house at Jerusalem, which is in Judah," said Cyrus,

Fifty thousand Jews, their hearts rejoicing at the thought of returning to the land of their fathers, set and ordinary family and when I say out on the trek of 600 miles, laden with gifts from the Persians for the restoration of the temple in Jerusalem. They could now sing the song of the Lord, and no longer did their harps hang silently on the willow trees.

THE DECREE OF ARTAXERXES THE fourth chapter of Ezra brings us to the halting of the work on the temple, after they had raised the magnificent sum of approximately $400,000, and had laid the foundation for the temple, with imposing ceremonies.

This delay was occasioned by the jealousy of the Samaritans, who went to Artaxerxes, through employed counsel, and convinced him that it would be dangerous to allem. At first, the Samaritans proposed that the Jews let them use the temple in joint worship, but the Jews feared the Samaritans and refused their offer. It was then that the Samaritans effected the delay in the building of the temple by the space of 14 years Meanwhile, the Jews went forward with the building of their homes and reestablishing themselves and their civilization in Jerusalem. . . .

STICKING TO ONE'S PURPOSE

W E come now to the part Haggai played in summoning the Jews to their duty and obligation to God to restore the temple. It was in the second year of the reign of Darius that Haggai received the word of the Lord. "Is it time for you, O ye, to dwell in your ceiled houses, and this house lie_waste? Now therefore thus saith the Lord of hosts, Consider your ways."

It was enough. The people rallied to the call of Haggai, and the temple was completed. Men can always do what they ought to do, if they will to do it.

GOD'S PURPOSE FULFILLED

pleted, Ezra 6:13-18, and God's purpose was fulfilled. Read Psalm

This brings us to the golden text: "No man, having put his hand to the plow, and looking back, is fit for the Kingdom of God," Luke 9:62. When once the returned exiles felt the iron of God's purpose surging through their veins, they quitted themselves like men, and God's power was everywhere manifest. So may it ever be with us!

Kathleen Norris Says:

Mother Should Exit Gracefully

"A year ago, George began going with a woman 1 will call Louise. She is 31, a widow and not pretty."

By KATHLEEN NORRIS

MARY CARTER is a widow and her son George, 28. is all she has. A daughter died at 12, 15 years ago, and her husband died when George was only eight. She has lived for him. When he went into the navy she suffered, as did all mothers of sons in the services. When he came back safe and sound, she settled down to a life of complete happiness with her

"But a year ago," says her letter, "George began going with a woman I will call Louise. She is $1, not pretty, a widow with boys of 7 and 5. She belongs to a large ordinary, I don't want you to think me a snob. They are good people, but not refined. Louise's sisters work in the box factory, her mother keeps boarders, an uncle is a postmaster. There is no real fault to be found with them, but George has been brought up among different people and it breaks my heart to hink of him getting absorbed by

"I own my own lovely little Spanish cottage outside of Glendale," the letter goes on. "Everything in this house is done with George's comfort in mind. But when he is martied, they plan to live with her mother, paying her board and having their meals, of course, with the rest of the boarders. I cannot see how this arrangement possibly can low these Jews to rebuild Jerusa- succeed. My feeling is so strong against it that I have begged George to postpone his marriage until they can find a suitable apartment but, for the first time in his life, he seems entirely indifferent to my

Has Hostile Attitude

"Naturally this does not make me feel very friendly toward Louise. She could easily persuade him to wait. I have not met her family, but she has dined with me several times and I do not dislike the girl. However, I feel she is an utterly unsuitable wife for George. To start marriage in a crowded boarding house with her two small children as a responsibility is to doom the marriage from the first. Apart from my own heartbreaking loneliness I will have the agony of seeing that he is miserable.

"I could threaten him with disinheritance but that is a theatrical attitude that I hate to make. He is my all-in-all. He knows it and I am convinced that he is taking advantage of it. "Please advise me about putting all this to the girl or telling George that his hasty marriage will put a barrier between us that may take THE message of Haggai was heeded. The temple was comover this and beg that you will forgive what may sound selfish and monopolistic. It is only George's welfare and what it may mean to a brilliant future that causes me such bitter grief. Louise simply isn't the woman for him-she is ambitionless, slipshod, happy-go-lucky and will drag him down to her own easy-going level. Please help me.'

> So much for Mary Carter's letter. She won't like the answer, but I print it because it applies to so many other mothers of adored and only sons. It is time for Mary to step

.. My feeling is so strong ... " | reported.

A HARD TASK

When a woman loses her husband she seeks another outlet for her affection and ordinarily, if she has any children, she will shower them with her love.

Mary Carter is a widow with only one son for whom she has a profound love.

But now the inevitable has happened. George met a girl whom he intends to marry. His mother disapproves vehemently. Jealous and tenacious mothers should reflect back on their own love-making days, suggests Miss Norris. They must realize that they cannot possess their children forever.

A time arrives in every mother's life when she assumes a secondary-role in her children's lives. Another woman, and in some cases, another man, takes her place.

down and try to get it through her head that George belongs to another woman now. Whatever she gets from him in affection, attention and companionship will be just so much "velvet." She has no more right to tell him with whom he should fall in love than her husband's mother had 30 years ago to control the heart affairs of George's fa-If these jealous, tenacious mothers only would look back one generation to their own love-making days, they would get a revelation that actually would shock them. I am sure that if I asked Mary Carter about her own mother-in-law, she would answer prettily, for she is evidently a cultured, charming, prosperous woman: "Why, she was just a dear! She didn't want Bob to marry so young, but she really came to like me. Bob and I used to go see her whenever we could. We couldn't go often, but he did see his mother pretty faithfully." Now ask yourself, Mary, if this much would satisfy you. Because that's what you're going to get. Louise and George will come to see you whenever they feel they can and it won't be often. When they do come it will be for a short superficial sort of visit, with engagements pressing them. They'll want you to see the baby and to come to Easter dinner, but you'll feel-and with reason-that you don't belong any more in their actual lives than you did in that of Mohandus Gandhi.

From now on it will be, "Georgie, Mother never sees you," and "I know, Mom, but I'm coming out next week-sure thing." If it is any comfort to you to know that you are experiencing only what other mothers-all except those poor enough to be of some real use to their children!-go through, you have that consolation.

But you asked for advice so here are two pieces for you. First, go call on Louise's family and be friendly and simple. Second, move out of that ideal Spanish bungalow and let the young couple move in. Wake up, Mary, and find your own loved and loving part in the story.

Government figures show 17 per cent fewer chicks hatched the first two months of 1948. On February 1, they report 26 per cent less eggs in incubators and on March 15, 39 per cent fewer chicks are booked for April and May delivery.

THIS MAY MEAN TWO THINGS

Next fall and winter, we may see the highest egg market that we have experienced, and the greatest shortage of poultry meats.

You can avoid this meat shortage and reap a nice profit from those hens next fall. You can fill your locker with nice fryers in a few weeks if you start now.

Good management, good feed plus good stocks will realize for you good profits. Write or Phone in Your Order Today for those U. S. Pullorum Tested Baby Chicks. They Are Bred to Live and Lay

'Poor' Polish Busboy, 74, Has $4,000 in Savings

NEWARK, N. J.—The impression of poverty which police got from questioning Michael Chosinsky, when he was removed to City hospital after he had collapsed from illness on the street, did not last long. In his clothes police found $4,000 in cash, two $500 bonds and four bank books. Chosinsky, who insists he is 74 but looks much younger, had worked as a bus boy at a lunchroom.

Spring Accessories Reflect New Trend Toward Femininity

By Ertta Haley

EVEN if you have to remodel your dresses and coats for the season, you won't be able to resist some of the new accessories. DEPARTMENT They're designed to delight the womanly heart for they're as gay, light HELP WANTED-MEN, WOMEN and feminine as you please.

Those of you who are older will delight in their lovely old-fashioned look because it will remind you of younger days. Those of you too young to remember other fashions and other days will adore their picture-book loveliness.

There are hats for every face and every fashion, there are billowy white, crisp blouses that smell of soap and water freshness and shoes that are slenderizing and dainty.

Gloves Will Match Colors of Rainbow

New gloves in every color of the rainbow give a bright promise to the fashion outlook for spring.

Not only are leather gloves being shown in the traditional white and pastels, but in all shades and variations of reds, blues, greens and browns. The early forecast favors butter yellow, Balenciaga tan and beige. Yellow should be particularly good with navy outfits, perennial season favorite.

Pastel pink and blue, bright red, gold and purple are expected to be preferred colors. All shades will come in doeskin, suede and glace.

In line with the general trend in fashion-now called the "Right Look"-American leather glove manufacturers have designed gloves to make the hand smooth, pretty and feminine. They are soft and dressy with slim lines > able. Gay suede or glace (capeskin) "shortie" gloves make an excellent choice to compliment a suit. Newest trend in "shorties" is cuff interest, a button trim or a turn back cuff of contrasting leather or color.

Sailors Are Popular

The gay, trim sailor is one of the most popular hats of the season, and goes very nicely with your suits, of course. You'll see some of the sailor hats freshly sprigged with flowers or eyelet to suit your fancy. Another hat that is seen often is the open crowned hat with gay flowers, and this is especially good for spring. If you already have one of these, the flowers can be changed, and it will be ready for a new season. There are many flowers available, and some of them are of soft, real-looking chiffon.

There are some large picture hats available, and then, too, the close fitting cloche type sprigged with a gay flower has taken a turn toward real simplicity.

Simplicity Favored In Bags and Belts

You'll find that the large oversized bags are still out of the picture and the trim, tailored type of bag is high in fashion. As always in spring, patent leather is favored, and this patent may be carried on further in a wide belt on your cos-

The really dark shades are favorites with suits.

Daintiness, Femininity Mark New Footwear

Shoes are dainty and feminine according to the forecast. Lines in shoes are long and slender with graceful heels and intricate ornamentation. Generally speaking footwear has climbed higher as hemlines have fallen. If you're conservative, choose the carry a lot of shoe, wear shoes built high on the instep. There are multi-colored effects, two-tone or ombre shading and shoes with more than one texture to break the length.

To slenderize the ankles, you may wear the high-riding vogues memtioned above. Pumps and ties that climb high about the ankle also achieve this effect. The bottee fashion is good, and the new slenderizing lasts are good for the ankle. A narrow forefront, achieved from tapering or pointed toes also helps give the illusion of all-over slender-

In ankle strap shoes, you'll be seeing dressy ones, tailored ones, colored and plain.

Low cut vamps are good this season especially if you can boast a high instep. In this case, it is wise to avoid ornamentation or sharp lines that detract from the instep.

Be Smart!

When grandma was a girl, no special occasion costume was complete without spike heels. Now, they're one of the newest and very fashion-important features of the 1920's revival. You'll be meeting them especially in sauve styles LYNN CHAMBERS' MENU

Proclamation

The week of April 19-24, inclusive, has been designated a Spring Clean-up Week.

There are many reasons why the Spring Clean up Campaign this year should receive the enthusiastic support of every man, woman and child. First, because man and child. First, because Fire Prevention Cleanup Campaign this year is of particular importance as it can be combined with general welfare work, and be of benefit to unemployed. Second, because every dollar in propert destroyed by fire is a drain upon our economic condition. And, third, every citien should have a wholesome pride in his home city, its streets, playgrounds, its parks and buildings.

Now, Therefore, I, Holly Toler, mayor of the City of Hamlin, do hereby designate the week of April 19 24, inclusive, as Spring Cleanup Week, and most respectfully call upon all departments of the City, Chamber of Commerce, Patriotic and Civic Clubs, and our people in general to take active part in this Cleanup Cam-

Lewis Battles Taft-Hartley Law; Baruch Sees 'Total Mobilization': Eisenhower Repeats His Refusal

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysis and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

LABOR: Lewis Fight

John L. Lewis and the Taft-Hartley law were locked in a mortal

His United Mine Workers were still out of the pits in a "voluntary" objection to the companies' alleged refusal to provide them with a $100-a-month pension plan. Most of the 400,000 miners were out fishing. Lewis himself was out gunning for the Taft-Hartley law, enactment of which was largely the result of his activities in the first place.

After the miners had gone out, President Truman, acting under the Taft-Hartley law, had appointed a fact-finding board to investigate the difficulties. But when the board asked John L. Lewis to testify, he

Then the board issued a subpoena requesting that he appear. Again Lewis refused, stating that the board had no right to demand his presence

He said he based his disinclination to testify on the facts that:

Neither he nor the UMW had 1 done anything covered by the Taft-Hartley law, thereby nullifying the President's invocation of the law, and

Finally, minutes before the deadline, the burly, bushy-eyebrowed chief appeared.

It was obvious, of course, that the UMW chief was out to break the Taft-Hartley enactment. Apparently he was determined to drag the pension dispute all the way through the courts-preferably as high as the supreme court to get a final verdict.

And any way it turned out, the process would react for the miners' immediate benefit. While the courts would be mulling over the matter the date for the annual renewal of the mine workers' contract in June would be approaching. The longer the present d'spute remained unsettled, the worse the nation's coal situation would grow, thus putting Lewis in a good bargaining position to extract a favorable contract for next year.

selective service and universal military training for the present quasicrisis, but he does not think that is enough to meet all the implications the world situation holds.

The financier and presidential adviser called also for an "economic mobilization plan" and said that resources now for peace would leave "no alternative but to mobilize for war" in the future. Baruch told the senate armed servthat if the nation suddenly and without preparation were called upon to mobilize and prepare for a big war, such forces of domestic inflation would be set in motion as could blow the country wide open and leave it defenseless.

He suggested the appointment of someone to "watch the impact upon our economy of the partial mobilization we are entering upon and to maintain a constant inventory, balancing all our growing commitments against our resources.'

It had not been a hidden threat, but Baruch's statement had focused attention on the possible danger that a sudden spate of military spending could bring about ruinous inflation.

As a result, talk of reviving the defunct OPA was being heard in touched off informal discussions in congress about the possibility of reand other curbs on the domestic economy.

TO WALLACE: Veiled Hint

Henry Wallace, whose third party movement was coming more and more to follow the standard Communist party line, had reached the status of a complete pariah as far as President Truman was concerned.

In his St. Patrick's day address in New York the President had rejected angrily any notion of accepting Wallace's support in his campaign, even if it cost him the elec-

He issued an acidulous, thinly veiled suggestion that Wallace take his third party movement to Russia where Mr. Truman obviously thinks

"I was going to tell you that the Greeks had a Henry Wallace," the President said to his listeners. "I was going to tell you that the Greeks had a statesman, an orator, a demagogue. . . . They had the greatest demagogue of all times, Alcibiades."

(Alcibiades was a famous Athenian who, after committing certain indiscretions, was forced to flee Athens. He went to Sparta and there betrayed secrets of his countrymen which were instrumental in bringing about the fall of Athens.) Mr. Truman continued: "If imitators of that ancient Greek conqueror want to see . . . liberties subverted, I suggest that they go not to the Rocky mountains—that's fine country out there. He ought to go to the country he loves so well and help them against his own country if that's the way he feels."

Ruminating on Ruminants, Or Cogitating About Cows

By BAUKHAGE News Analyst and Commentator

WASHINGTON,-The subject of cows recently has been called to my attention.

In the early pre-crossword days, a cow was supposed to be an animal of the bovine species. Now it is just a three-letter word meaning ruminant. There is another three-letter word which also sometimes means a ruminant of which I will speak later.

Before I knew that a cow was either a member of the bovine species or a ruminant, I thought it was > something fearful which was euphemistically addressed as "Bossie," and which (I was told) would not hurt me. I took the former statement as correct, but had grave doubts about the latter. Later I was taught that c-o-w spelled, not bossie, but cow, and still later I was chased by one. This caused additional doubt concerning free information furnished by one's

Then came the crossword puzzles. I saw that "three, horizontal" was a three-letter word meaning ruminant. Having heard of the word "ruminate" by that time, and thinking that, thinking or, if you will, ruminating, was a fairly common practice among the genus homo, I wrote down "man." Later when I met a number of congressmen I was convinced of my error.

Now I know that neither definition is entirely wrong. A cow ruminates when it chews its cud (having chewed it before), and a man ruminates when he chews an idea upon which he has chewed

In some ways however, cows and men differ. In fact, cows even differ in some respects from women, although all three creatures-man, woman and cow-are mammals, the highest form of vertebrate, those which (the authorities inform me) nurse their young with milk. Just how man gets into this category is a little beyond me, but that is what the scientist says, and I am willing to strain my credulity a little. After all, I suppose that my father, who paid for the milk which I drank when I got so I could take it out of staunchly unafraid in his belief a glass, nourished me in a manner that no animal would attack a of speaking. We will let it go at that, although it seems to me that a man assumes a little of what might be criticized as the gland manner of speaking when he tries to get more than a grade B rating as a mammal.

But to return to the differences between cows on the one hand, and as we know from listening to the

Now what has a cow got that you and I haven't? Answer: Cattie are closely related to the buffalo, the bison and the yak. I defy any genealogist to produce a bison, a buffalo and a yak in one human family tree. On the other hand, in the branches of a cow's family tree, there are no monkeys.

In some ways the cow has superior abilities. For instance, I have seen a cow roll over without spilling a drop of milk, which is more than any man, carrying a similar amount of lacteal fluid, could do.

Philologically, the cow seems to have somewhat of an edge on man. at least for those who believe in the capitalistic system. The Latin word 'or cattle (as of course you know f you just looked it up as I did) is 'pecus." When applied to cows instead of capitalists, the cold has the opposite effect on longevity. According to a recent article in Food Industries, a McGraw-Hill publication, the Russians have produced, by means of a chilling process applied from early calf-hood, cows which live with a high output to 15 years, yield up to 100,000 liters

After the grey winter days New Hampshire avenue almost sparkles these spring mornings. The elm buds are spreading and the shadows of trunk and limb make sharp patterns on the wide expanse of the huge Belmont house. This house now is occupied by the Eastern Star-no family ever could have done more than rattle about in that palatial mansion. I suppose there will be few such palaces built in Washington any more-one after another, they are being torn down. The Leiter house on Dupont Circle is gone and a family hotel is rising in its place. Many other mansions, too big for embassies even, served as boarding houses for war workers and now they are empty and for

A part of this section of Washington-Dupont Circle - is being sealed off for a year while the roadbuilders burrow under the grassy park to make an underpass for trolley cars and automobiles. This will be the final plow of disfiguration to Connecticut avenue, which has yielded gradually over the years since I first knew it, to the vulgarian invasion.

WHEN YOU HEAR someone crying or complaining about his bad luck or the tough breaks that have followed him, you don't have to pay the slightest attention to the sombre squawk. All you have to do is think about Al Snyder.

His dream, that of every jockey, was to ride a Kentucky Derby winner. Beyond that, to be the winning rider of the Triple Crown. Snyder, after 10 tough riding years, was set to make his triple move in the Derby, the Preakness and the Belmont on a three-year-old known as Citation, rated today as the surest Triple Crown winner in racing history.

Unfortunately, Snyder went fishing in a small boat with two friends. They were in the famous Florida Keys. A gale came along without warning, and someone else will ride Citation in the three rich races. A whirl of wind at twilight-and the small boat had vanished.

As the late Mr. Henley so well wrote: "Into the night go one and Citation is still here and ready. So are Ben and Jimmy Jones. But just what happened to Snyder is anybody's guess.

Sport is always packed full of soul-searing breaks-of audden turns that mean the difference between victory and defeat. But this is a different case. This sudden squall meant the difference between tife with fame and gold and the sudden blotting out of a career that was just beginning to

Why is it that we have no golfers who can win more than one tournament on a 3,500-mile junket? Horton Smith won six around 1928. Jimmy Demaret won six or seven a few years back. MacDenald Smith won eight big ones in a year. Bobby Jones mopped up in 1930. Jones and Hagen won 24 national and international championships between them.

Now you can't find a golfer who can win as many as two. Ben Hogan never has won an Open. Jimmy Demaret never has won an Open or a P.G.A. Sammy Snead never has won a U. S. Open, although the brilliant but erratic Snead has won the P.G.A. and the British Open.

Hogan, Nelson, Snead and Demaret are too good to stand on their records in the U. S. Open, the British Open and the P.G.A., the three top titles of golf.

Where is another Bobby Jones? Another Walter Hagen, another Gene Sarazen? I might add another Tommy Armour and another Jim Barnes, who won these three major events. The modern charge is made that

Jones, Hagen and Sarazen played in only few tournaments-that all three would have been nervous wrecks if they had followed the rough trail that Hogan, Demaret. Snead and the others have taken. This can be true. I am not going to deny it for I

She went on practicing strokes and kicks, swallowing water and floundering in despair-and then, one day, one day of days, it happened! She swam! Only a few feet at first, then farther and farther and farther with practice. Bobby, her 10-year-old teacher, jumped up and down and shrieked with joy, and they had a waterfight to celebrate. After that, nothing could stop her. It was just an easy sidestroke but it was swim-

LET'S TALK ABOUT You

- BY CHARLES B. ROTH -

A Good Conversationalist

That the man I have just spent a week with has mastered one of the most important of all human arts, there is no doubt. Wherever we went he charmed those we met, charmed them by his personality, his graciousness, his poise, but principally by his conversation.

For he seemed to know exactly what to say to everyone to whom we talked. I mentioned it to him. "Oh, it's simple," he replied, "all

has certain subjects in which he is especially interested-his business, his hobby, his family, some outside accomplishment, politics, something that especially interests.

Anything that appeals to a person's special interests, identifies you with him, will get and hold his attention-and if you get and hold anyone's attention he will find you an engaging personality.

If you want your personality to appeal to others, all you have to do is follow the few simple rules which my friend explained to me.

The Return From Exile Lesson for April 18, 1948

COWPER'S lines come to mind as we study the dramatic return of the Jews from their exile in Babylon to Jerusalem in the first year of the reign of Cyrus, king of Persia, 536 B. C.:

"God moves in a mysterious way His wonders to perform; He plants his footsteps in the sea

And rides upon the storm." And yet it is not altogether strange.

given 50 years before the event that this very thing would occur. There were two other deportations of the Jews from Babylon, prior to the incident in our lesson-the return led' by Daniel, 606 B. C., and the one led by Ezekiel, 597 B. C.

PROCLAMATION OF CYRUS

THE proclamation of Cyrus, Ezra 1:1-5, records the happy word to the Jews that they would not only return, but that the temple would be rebuilt. Cyrus called upon all the people who would to make offerings by which the temple might be restored. Cyrus was acting under divine impulse in this gracious and generous proclama-

"The Lord God of heaven hath given me all the kingdoms of the earth: and he hath charged me to build him an house at Jerusalem, which is in Judah," said Cyrus, Ezra 1:2.

Fifty thousand Jews, their hearts rejoicing at the thought of returning to the land of their fathers, set out on the trek of 600 miles. laden with gifts from the Persians for the restoration of the temple in Jerusalem. They could now sing the song of the Lord, and no longer did their harps hang silently on the willow trees.

THE DECREE OF ARTAXERXES THE fourth chapter of Ezra

I brings us to the halting of the work on the temple, after they had raised the magnificent sum of approximately $400,000, and had laid letter goes on. "Everything in this the foundation for the temple, with imposing ceremonies.

This delay was occasioned by the jealousy of the Samaritans, who went to Artaxerxes, through employed counsel, and convinced him that it would be dangerous to allow these Jews to rebuild Jerusalem. At first, the Samaritans proposed that the Jews let them use the temple in joint worship, but the Jews feared the Samaritans and refused their offer. It was then that the Samaritans effected the delay in the building of the temple by the space of 14 years Meanwhile, the Jews went forward with the building of their homes and reestablishing themselves and their civilization in Jerusalem.

STICKING TO ONE'S PURPOSE

WE come now to the part Haggai played in summoning the Jews to their duty and obligation to God to restore the temple. It was in the second year of the reign of Darius that Haggai received the word of the Lord. "Is it time for you, O ye, to dwell in your ceiled houses, and this house lie_waste? Now therefore thus saith the Lord of hosts. Consider your ways."

It was enough. The people rallied to the call of Haggai, and the temple was completed. Men can always do what they ought to do, if they will to do it.

GOD'S PURPOSE FULFILLED

THE message of Haggai was heeded. The temple was completed, Ezra 6:13-18, and God's purpose was fulfilled. Read Psalm

This brings us to the golden text: "No man, having put his hand to the plow, and looking back, is fit for the Kingdom of God." Luke 9:62. When once the returned exiles felt the iron of God's purpose surging through their veins, they quitted themselves like men, and God's power was everywhere mani-

Kathleen Norris Says:

Mother Should Exit Gracefully

"A year ago, George began going with a woman I will call Louise. She is 31, a widow and not pretty."

By KATHLEEN NORRIS

MARY CARTER is a widow and her son George, 28, is all she has. A daughter died at 12, 15 years ago, and her husband died when George was only eight. She has lived for him. When he went into the navy she suffered, as did all mothers of sons in the services. When he came back safe and sound, she settled down to a life of complete happiness with her

"But a year ago," says her letter, "George began going with a woman I will call Louise. She is $1, not pretty, a widow with boys of 7 and 5. She belongs to a large and ordinary family and when I say prdinary, I don't want you to think me a snob. They are good people, but not refined. Louise's sisters work in the box factory, her mother keeps boarders, an uncle is a postmaster. There is no real fault to be found with them, but George has been brought up among different people and it breaks my heart to hink of him getting absorbed by

"I own my own lovely little Spanish cottage outside of Glendale," the fort in mind. But when he is martied, they plan to live with her mother, paying her board and having their meals, of course, with the rest of the boarders. I cannot see how this arrangement possibly can succeed. My feeling is so strong against it that I have begged George to postpone his marriage until they can find a suitable apartment but, for the first time in his life, he seems entirely indifferent to my

"Naturally this does not make me feel very friendly toward Louise. She could easily persuade him to wait. I have not met her family, but she has dined with me several times and I do not dislike the girl. However, I feel she is an utterly unsuitable wife for George. To start marriage in a crowded boarding house with her two small children as a responsibility is to doom the marriage from the first. Apart from my own heartbreaking loneliness I will have the agony of seeing that he is miserable.

"I could threaten him with disinheritance but that is a theatrical attitude that I hate to make. He is my all-in-all. He knows it and I am convinced that he is taking advantage of it.

"Please advise me about putting all this to the girl or telling George that his hasty marriage will put a barrier between us that may take years to break down. I am desperate with disappointment and anxiety over this and beg that you will forgive what may sound selfish and monopolistic. It is only George's welfare and what it may mean to a brilliant future that causes me such bitter grief. Louise simply isn't the woman for him-she is ambitionless, slipshod, happy-go-lucky and will drag him down to her own easy-going level. Please help me." * * *

So much for Mary Carter's letter. She won't like the answer, but I print it because it applies to so many other mothers of adored and only sons. It is time for Mary to step

A HARD TASK

When a woman loses her husband she seeks another outlet for her affection and ordinarily, if she has any children, she will shower them with her love.

Mary Carter is a widow with only one son for whom she has a profound love.

But now the inevitable has happened. George met a girl whom he intends to marry. His mother disapproves vehemently.

Jealous and tenacious mothers should reflect back on their own love-making days, suggests Miss Norris. They must realize that they cannot possess their children forever.

A time arrives in every mother's life when she assumes a secondary role in her children's lives. Another woman, and in some cases, another man, takes her place.

down and try to get it through her house is done with George's com- head that George belongs to another woman now. Whatever she gets from him in affection, attention and companionship will be just so much "velvet." She has no more right to tell him with whom he should fall in love than her husband's mother had 30 years ago to control the heart affairs of George's fa-If these jealous, tenacious mothers only would look back one generation to their own love-making days, they would get a revelation that actually would shock them. I am sure that if I asked Mary Carter about her own mother-in-law, she would answer prettily, for she is evidently a cultured, charming, prosperous woman: "Why, she was just a dear! She didn't want Bob to marry so young, but she really came to like me. Bob and I used to go see her whenever we could. We couldn't go often, but he did see his mother pretty faithfully."

Now ask yourself, Mary, if this much would satisfy you. Because that's what you're going to get. Louise and George will come to see you whenever they feel they can and it won't be often. When they do come it will be for a short superficial sort of visit, with engagements pressing them. They'll want you to see the baby and to come to Easter dinner, but you'll feel-and with reason-that you don't belong any more in their actual lives than you did in that of Mohandus Gandhi.

From now on it will be, "Georgie, Mother never sees you," and "I know, Mom, but I'm coming out next week-sure thing." If it is any comfert to you to know that you are experiencing only what other mothers-all except those poor enough to be of some real use to their children!-go through, you have that consolation.

But you asked for advice so here are two pieces for you. First, go call on Louise's family and be friendly and simple. Second, move out of that ideal Spanish bungalow and let the young couple move in. Wake up, Mary, and find your own loved and loving part in the story.

Mister, this Oil gives you "Lubri-tection"! *

Yes, That's the Kind of Protection You Get With the Great Phillips 66 Premium Motor Oil!

RIGHT-you can get more than just lubricating qualities with this fine oil-you get plenty of engine protection, too!

That's why we call it "lubri-tection"! Because Phillips 66 Premium does more than just oil moving parts. It washes away harmful sludge, helps reduce piston-fouling varnish, protects delicate bearing metal from corrosion. All that in a quart of oil!

Why not give your engine this kind of treatmentit's worth it. Just ask for the new Phillips 66 Premium.

* "Lubri-tection" - the protection rendered by an oil of fine base stock containing special detergent and oxidation inhibiting ingredients.

Spring Accessories Reflect New Trend Toward Femininity

By Ertta Haley

EVEN if you have to remodel your dresses and coats for the season, you won't be able to resist some of the new accessories. DEPARTMENT They're designed to delight the womanly heart for they're as gay, light and feminine as you please.

Those of you who are older will delight in their lovely old-fashioned look because it will remind you of younger days. Those of you too young to remember other fashions and other days will adore their picture-book loveliness.

There are hats for every face and every fashion, there are billowy white, crisp blouses that smell of soap and water freshness and shoes that are slenderizing and dainty.

Gloves Will Match Colors of Rainbow

New gloves in every color of the rainbow give a bright promise to the fashion outlook for spring.

Not only are leather gloves being shown in the traditional white and pastels, but in all shades and variations of reds, blues, greens and browns. The early forecast favors butter yellow, Balenciaga tan and beige. Yellow should be particularly good with navy outfits, perennial season favorite.

Pastel pink and blue, bright red, gold and purple are expected to be preferred colors. All shades will come in doeskin, suede and glace. In line with the general trend in fashion-now called the "Right Look"-American leather glove manufacturers have designed gloves

Fresh white gloves will, as always, step out ahead in the fashion parade, and this year many women will want to use high colored or winter suit they are wearing on cool days.

Smartest styles in gloves for spring are either very long or very short. Some of the elbow length gloves are long and slim and can be worn pulled up or crushed down to the wrist. Gauntlet styles with wide flaring cuff to be worn over the The suit sleeve continue to be fashion-

Gay suede or glace (capeskin) "shortie" gloves make an excellent choice to compliment a suit. Newest trend in "shorties" is cuff interest, a button trim or a turn back cuff of contrasting leather or color.

Open Crown Hats, Sailors Are Popular

The gay, trim sailor is one of the most popular hats of the season, and goes very nicely with your suits, of course. You'll see some of the sailor hats freshly sprigged with flowers or eyelet to suit your fancy. Another hat that is seen often is the open crowned hat with gay flowers, and this is especially good for spring. If you already have one of these, the flowers can be changed, and it will be ready for a new season. There are many flowers available, and some of them are of soft, real-looking chiffon.

There are some large picture hats available, and then, too, the close fitting cloche type sprigged with a gay flower has taken a turn toward real simplicity.

Simplicity Favored In Bags and Belts

You'll find that the large oversized bags are still out of the picture and the trim, tailored type of bag is high in fashion. As always in spring, patent leather is favored, and this patent may be carried on further in a wide belt on your cos-

Among the novelties in bags, you'll find that straw woven affairs are coming in to give the wearer a more casual type of bag with her informal prints. No return is seen of the shoulder type bag, so it's a good idea to discard yours, if you have one, in favor of the more feminine pouch types being favored.

Hose still remain dark, but there but these latter two are rather dark. The really dark shades are favorites with suits.

Daintiness, Femininity Mark New Footwear

simple, unadorned pump with closed heels and toes. You'll find no stubby toed shoes, for this is the season for tapering toelines.

If your foot is long and built to carry a lot of shoe, wear shoes built high on the instep. There are multi-colored effects, two-tone or ombre shading and shoes with more than one texture to break the

To slenderize the ankles, you may wear the high-riding vogues memtioned above. Pumps and ties that climb high about the ankle also achieve this effect. The bottee fashion is good, and the new slenderizing lasts are good for the ankle. A narrow forefront, achieved from tapering or pointed toes also helps give the illusion of all-over slender.

Be Cautious in Wearing Ankle Strap Shoes

Unless you have slim and beautiful ankles, do not buy ankle strap shoes. But if you do have them, you may wear them for they are high fashion. The more slender the ankle, the wider may be the strap effect. Choose the tapering rather than the pointed toes.

In ankle strap shoes, you'll be seeing dressy ones, tailored ones, colored and plain.

Low cut vamps are good this season especially if you can boast a high instep. In this case, it is wise to avoid ornamentation or sharp lines that detract from the instep.

Be Smart!

When grandma was a girl, no special occasion costume was complete without spike heels. Now, they're one of the newest and very fashion-important features of the 1920's revival. You'll be meeting them especially in sauve styles with their newer, narrower effects.

Variety of Salads Offers Inspiration For Meal Planning

80 PM 10 800

by Lynn Chambers

How much can a salad do for a meal? Well, you all know it adds precious vitamins and minerals to the meal, but have you thought about how much flavor and true texture contrast it brings, too?

There are thousands of salads from which to draw for true meal inspiration. There's a crisp, green tossed type for the really heavy meal; there's a cheese and vegetable combination for the meal to which you want to add more protein, and then there's a tossed fruit or molded fruit when you want to

Flavor artistry like this can be practiced by any cook to add new meal interest. Subtly flavored, delicately pink tinted shrimp and mellow green avocadoes are as happy a blending of flavors and colors as ever graced a salad add toothsome interest to the meal or have the salad double for dessert.

Don't neglect the plain lettuce are some pastel hose coming to be salads when you lack inspiration for used with light prints. A lovely an idea. You can vary the lettuce pink shade is being shown as well with several different dressings as some shades of green and blue, made beforehand or tossed quickly together the last minute.

*Vegetable Salad Bowl (Serves 6)

- 2 small tomatoes
- 1/2 Spanish onion 1/2 cucumber scored
- 1/2 green pepper 1/2 bunch radishes
- 1 stalk endive 1/2 small head of lettuce
- 1/2 small head of escarole
- 1/2 small head of chicory French or Roquefort dressing

Peel and chill tomatoes. Slice onion, cucumber, green pepper and tomatoes. Slice radishes half way through. Arrange on clean, crisp, chilled salad greens and place dressing in a small bowl in the center or toss through the salad just before

1/2 pound grapes, seeded 1 orange peeled and sectioned Whipped cream mayonnaise

Line salad bowl with romaine and lettuce. Divide bowl into four divisions with half slices of pineapple. Arrange alternate sections of grapefruit and apple slices in one division, and place remaining fruits in separate divisions. Fill center with mayonnaise. Whipped cream mayonnaise is made by adding half whipped cream to half mayonnaise

Molded Fruit Salad

- (Serves 6) 1 No. 2 can crushed pineapple
- 1 package fruit gelatin 1/8 teaspoon salt
- 6 ounces cream cheese 1 cup heavy cream
- 3/4 cup chopped nuts
- 1 cup seedless grapes or white cherries 3/4 cup diced marshmallows
- 1/2 cup diced celery 2 pimientes, diced

Drain pineapple. Measure juic and add enough water to make on cup. Heat juice to boiling and adgelatin and salt. Stir until dissolved. Cool, and when it begins to thicken, add cheese which has been softened and whipped with an eggbeater. Whip cream until stiff and fold into gelatin with remaining ingredients. Pour into individual or large molds and let chill until firm. Unmold on crisp lettuce.

Diced apricots or peaches may be used in place of pineapple.

Chef's Dressing (For Greens)
